The Manitoba Health Research Council (MHRC) joins the Consortia Advancing Standards in Research Administration Information (CASRAI). MHRC is pleased to partner with CASRAI and cooperatively work towards the development of standardized research application information.

“Streamlining application standards benefits both the researcher and the administrator,” says Christina Weise, Executive Director of MHRC. “Creating an efficient system puts time and energy back into the researcher’s hands and gives the funding agency nationwide access to comparable data-sets.”

“We are pleased to have MHRC join us” says David Baker, Executive Director of CASRAI. “The leadership they are showing as part of the provincial health research community across Canada is crucial to the successful development and adoption of our data standards.”

About CASRAI

The Consortia Advancing Standards in Research Administration Information (casrai.org) is a fully independent, not-for-profit organization that develops, maintains, and promotes standards for research administration data. It is supported by members of the research administration industry. CASRAI’s mandate is to develop research administration standards that will improve the overall efficiency of research administration.
